WOULD INCREASE MAYOR'S POWER

B. A. Black Can Discharge Any City
Employee if Bill Passes Legislature

CONTROLS ALL APPOINTMENTS

Under Present Law He Names Only
Chief of Police and Fire Department Head.

A bill has been introduced in the lower house of the legislature in Indianapolis which would greatly increase the powers of Mayor Black. It seeks to vest all city appointments, including those of the city policemen and firemen, and also the city attorney, in the mayor of cities of the fifth class, to which class Rushville belongs. It has another provision which would put it in the "ripper" class.

It seeks to give the mayor the right to remove any appointee under the city administration, whether the person was appointed by him, by his predecessor or by the city council. Thus, under this bill, the mayor in every city of the fifth class, which comprises a majority of the cities in Indiana, would remove all members of the police and fire forces and appoint new ones. Under the present law, the common council is in control of the police and fire forces, although the city marshal and chief of the fire department are appointees of the mayor.

The bill has a repealing clause and an emergency clause. When the bill amends the cities and towns act of 1905, the Speaker referred it to the committee on cities and towns. The author objected, however, and asked that it be sent to the Judiciary B committee, and his request was complied with. He is chairman of that committee.

The bill also seeks to amend two sections which pertain to the power of the mayor to revoke or suspend liquor licenses, and the power of the mayor to order theaters, music halls or other public buildings closed when unsafe to persons or adjacent property. The amendments provide for appeals being taken to the circuit court, and provide that all licenses or permits shall remain in effect until the end of the first term of court after such appeal, at which the cause might have been lawfully heard.

NO SPECIAL OBSERVANCE

Attention Called to Lincoln's Birthday in Public Schools.

There was no special observance of Lincoln's birthday here today. The banks were closed because it was a legal holiday but other business houses were open as usual. A few flags were displayed. No programs were given in the public schools, but the attention of the pupils in all the rooms were called to the day. The pupils in the grades have been singing patriotic songs at their exercises this week so that the significance of the day would be brought to the children. Lincoln stories were read in the grades and special attention to the day was paid in the high school classes. Exercises are being planned for Washington's birthday.

MECHANICS LIEN SUIT HEARD TODAY

Evidence Presented in Case of F. B.
Johnson Against Harter Bebout —Aftermath of Score Card.

WILL BE ARGUED TOMORROW

The case of F. B. Johnson and company against Harter Bebout, to foreclose a mechanics lien, demanding $200 was tried today before Judge Megee. All the evidence in the case was heard and it will be argued tomorrow morning. The case is the aftermath of the Diamond Grapho score card company, of which Will Perry was the grand organizer. When Perry was "starting his plant" he rented the rooms over the Bether poolroom of Harter Bebout for his "offices." F. B. Johnson & Co., re-decorated the rooms and when Perry left the city attempted to collect of Bebout. Bebout claimed that he did not order the work and that the plaintiff should have collected from Perry. The evidence showed that Bebout knew of the work and helped select the wall paper. The amount of the bill was something like $140 and the complaint demanded $200.

FARMERS CHASE FOX WITHOUT SUCCESS

Fail to Catch Three South of Arlington Though Pack of Hounds
Was on Trial.

COMPELLED TO GIVE UP HUNT

Fox hunting has become almost a daily pastime in the farming community south of Arlington since two foxes have been seen in that vicinity in the last few days. Scott Brown, Thomas Macy and John Wall caught sight of a large red fox one day recently and chased it for hours. They were finally exhausted and had to give up the hunt.

The hunt was taken up later by Jesse Dyer, Dick Ramsey and other sportsmen of the community, who, with a pack of hounds, searched the neighborhood and finally started a big red fox that corresponded with the one which had been seen a few days before. The dogs scared up a smaller one but were unsuccessful in catching it. The chase was finally abandoned at night. The fox were going in the direction of Shelbyville.

RUSHVILLE TO SEND A CROWD

Special Cars Carrying Delegations
From Many Cities Will Attend Republican Dinner.

GOV. HADLEY CHIEF SPEAKER

All Demands For Seats Are For
"Near The Speaker"—Are Republicans Deaf?

Are the Republicans of Indiana growing deaf? The Republican state committee does not think so, yet applications for tickets for the "get-together" dinner, at the Claypool hotel, Friday evening, at which former Governor Herbert S. Hadley, of Missouri, will speak, would indicate a prevalence of deafness among the applicants, says the Indianapolis News. Almost every applicant for a seat makes the request for an assignment "near the speaker" and many give "slight deafness" as an excuse for the request. Charles W. Jewett, secretary of the Republican Union, which is arranging the dinner, said there will be no difficulty in hearing Governor Hadley.

The sale of seats for the dinner opened yesterday at the Marion Club, the Columbia Club, Republican State headquarters and at Mr. Jewett's office. The early demand was brisk, indicating a heavy attendance. There has been some apprehension that the demands for seats from over the State might shut out local Republicans who have not yet obtained tickets.

The first mail at Republican headquarters yesterday brought additional new delegation... P. W. egv requests for fifty seats and word of new delegations from outlying towns. Danville telephoned that the "capital of Hendricks county" would send at least fifteen Republicans to the dinner. There will be a special car from Evansville and parties from Brazil, Rushville, Martinsville, Anderson and other points.

TO CONFER WITH OTHER COMPANIES

Secretary of New Salem Telephone Organization Instructed to Correspond With Competitors.

CONCERNING FREE SERVICE

The directors of the New Salem Telephone company reached no definite conclusion yesterday as to how to proceed in the campaign to be waged by the county telephone lines to get free service through the Rushville exchange. Various plans were discussed, but it was finally decided that the secretary should be instructed to correspond with other companies in the county to learn what methods they intended to use. It is the desire of the New Salem company to get a united effort on the part of the companies over the county to persuade the Rushville company to do away with the toll charge and the flat rate fifty cents a month. The Orange telephone company has appointed a committee to confer with other companies, and all of them have discussed the topic.

SENATE PASSES JACKSON BILL

Seeks to Regulate Bond of Trustees of Estates of Persons
"Legally Dead."

ANOTHER MEASURE IS KILLED

Rush County Can Have Tuberculosis Hospital if Senate Bill Becomes a Law.

A bill introduced in the state senate in Indianapolis by Senator Cary Jackson of this city was passed by the senate yesterday without a dissenting vote and another of his measures was reported for indefinite postponement by a committee.

The bill of the local senator's which was killed sought to regulate the method filling vacancies in county offices, caused by death, resignation to removal. The bill provided that the county chairman of the party which was in power in the county should make the nomination and that the county board should be compelled to make the appointment accordingly.

The bill which was passed unanimously provides for a proper bond to be given by a trustee appointed by the court in cases involving the settlement of estates of persons declared illegally dead. The bill says the trustee must give bond in the amount of one and a half of the sum involved for restoring the estate to the person declared illegally dead, should he reappear in three years.

Senator Jackson cast the only vote against the amendment to the bill making it unlawful to test automobiles or motorcycle on Marion county highways, which sought to make it possible to take machines to be tested over the highways to the Indianapolis speedway.

According to Senator Harlan's bill, which was passed by the senate yesterday without opposition, Rush county can establish a hospital for tuberculosis patients, or can join with any county or counties in building a home for tubercular patients. A small tax is authorized by the bill to raise the necessary funds to build such a hospital. The bill is not mandatory, but merely makes such a thing possible.

Senator Yarbrough's bill, which provides that boys and girls under 16 years old must either attend school or have permanent employment was passed with only one dissenting vote, that of Senator Ballou. With the coming of vocational schools it is held that the presence of such a law will be very helpful.

"Gun toters" received a blow when the Senate decided that it would be bad policy to pass Senator Kolsem's bill requiring all persons carrying or selling deadly weapons to procure a license at $1 a year from the county clerk. Senator Will R. Wood opposed the measure, saying that the enactment of the measure would simply mean that deadly weapons would be put into the hands of thousands of persons who otherwise would not think of carrying a weapon because of the existing law against the practice. The bill was killed by a vote of 22 to 16.

The Senate, however, thought well of Representative Kemp's bill providing a heavy fine and imprisonment for selling a deadly weapon to an intoxicated person or to a person who is in the habit of getting intoxicated and the bill went through by a vote of 39 to 0.

I.B. LONG DIES OF CANCER OF THROAT

Venerable Citizen of Orange Answers
Final Summons in 89th Year
After Long Illness.

FIVE CHILDREN SURVIVE

Israel B. Long, age eighty-nine years, died at his home in Orange this morning at nine-thirty o'clock of cancer of the throat after a long illness. For the last few weeks his life has been despaired of, and his children living in this part of the county have been at his bedside several times. He was brought home from Martinsville four weeks ago. He went to the resort to recover his health, and on his return home, he began to decline rapidly.

Mr. Long was a highly respected citizen of the Orange community where he has lived long, and leaves many friends. His wife died only last September, and four of his children have died in recent years. He would have celebrated his ninetieth birthday in June. Mr. Long was a member of the Masonic lodge and of the Orange Christian church. He leaves six children as follows: Innis Fay of Greentown, Howard county; Will Long of Ogden, Utah; Ross M. Long of Ft. Worth, Texas; Sam and Glen Long of Anderson and Dan Long of this city. The funeral arrangements will not be made until word is received from some of the children.

PREDICTION IS COMING TRUE

Newcastle and Muncie Will be Connected by Interurban Line by July 4.

FROM NEWCASTLE HERE NEXT

Connection With Cincinnati Is Desired by Traction Lines of of Northern Indiana.

It was predicted, when a meeting was held here to decide whether an effort should be made to get a special election to vote on an I. & C. subsidy, that the Honey Bee line from Indianapolis to Newcastle, which is owned by the Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction company, would be extended to Muncie so as to take care of the traction traffic from the northern part of the state to Indianapolis.

It was pointed out that the next step by traction magnates would be to connect Newcastle and Rushville by an interurban line so that a shorter and faster time route between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati could be made by connecting with the I. & C. here if it extends to Cincinnati.

Further interest is attached to this story by an article in the Newcastle Courier which says that ears will be operating between Newcastle and Muncie by July 4. When this line is completed the T. H. & I. will be enabled to handle its northern Indiana traffic over two separate and distinct routes. The traffic is so heavy over the route now used that another had to be arranged so as to relieve the congestion.

The local interest in the story bears on the prediction at the recent meeting here that Newcastle and Rushville would eventually be connected by interurban so that a more direct and shorter route from northern Indiana to Cincinnati could be arranged.

These facts were related at the meeting to show that the farmers in the northern part of Rush county, and especially in the northern part of Rushville township, should support the subsidy to get the I. & C. extension because they would at some future date be asking the people of southern Rushville township to support them in order to get the extension from Newcastle to Rushville.

The connection of Newcastle and Rushville by traction, with the extension from Newcastle to Muncie put through, would make an hour's shorter route from Fort Wayne to Cincinnati, if the extension from here is made. This is a thing much desired by traction officials.

How delightful it is when you go shopping in an undecided state of mind to find a salesperson who can tell you what fabrics are to be most popular, and what is most appropriate for a woman of your size; or one who will sell you the hat that is really becoming, and is candid enough not to say that "every one looks lovely on you."

The merchants who advertise in THE DAILY REPUBLICAN take particular pains to see that their salespeople are well-informed on newest modes and correct styles in dress, furniture, or whatever they may sell. You will be well advised if you accept their help—which is never aggressively given.

A LAWYER'S ADVICE TO SUGAR "TRUST"

Letters From J. E. Parsons Introduced In Hearing.

New York, Feb. 12.—The introduction of certain letters as evidence in the preliminary hearing before United States Special Examiner Wilson B. Brice, proved startling to the attorneys for the American Sugar Refining company, which the government is endeavoring to dissolve by means of a Sherman law suit, were startled by the in-man law suit.

In one of these letters, which were not embodied in the government's criminal evidence in the prosecution of the sugar trust and its officials, J. E. Parsons, attorney for the sugar company, advises C. E. Heike, the secretary that it was better to risk the imposition of a fine rather than to comply with the law regarding the keeping of stock transfer books in the state of New Jersey.

In another communication the attorney advises against the holding of conferences "to improve conditions" unless they were likely to result in some practical advantage, for, according to the writer, such conferences "are dangerously near an evasion of the spirit of the law."

Mr. Parsons's advice was given in answer to a letter written by Secretary Heike in which the latter calls attention to the conferences held by the representatives of the steel interests, and speaks of the influence wielded by the latter at Washington.

Attorney Parsons on another occasion writes Mr. Havemeyer that he sees no reason why the American Sugar Refining company should not allow wholesalers a rebate if it desires to do so, and suggests that the sugar interests combine with the tobacco interests and other large corporations to fight what he characterized "vicious" legislation to the contrary.

LAST PLEA SHALL NOT GO UNHEEDED

Britons Rise to Captain
Scott's Message.

THE WHOLE WORLD THRILLED

Final Report Found on Body of Polar Explorer, Detailing the Extremity to Which the Little Party Had Been Reduced, Stands to Be Regarded as One of England's Most Precious Documents.

London, Feb. 12.—All England, thrilled to the heart at the death of Captain Scott and his four men, is determined that the last plea of the dying explorer shall not go unheeded.

Responsive to the spirit of the day, both the lords and the house of commons have taken steps to carry out the explorer's wishes. While the families of the dead have not been formally pensioned, there is every intention that such a course will be followed. Glowing tributes have been paid to Captain Scott and his band by lords and commons and a ministry that disregarded the leaders' request to the English people would be in grave danger of falling. It is expected that within a few days parliament will authorize government pensions for the surviving dependants of the victims. The final message of the explorer to the world follows:

A Remarkable Document.
"Message to the Public.—The causes of this disaster are not due to faulty organization, but to misfortune in all the risks that had to be undertaken.

"1. The loss of the pony transport in March, 1911, obliged me to start later than I had intended and obliged the limits of the stuff transported to be narrowed.

"2. The weather throughout the outward journey, especially the long gale in 83 degrees south, stopped us, the soft snow in the lower reaches of Beardmore glacier again reduced the pace. We fought these untoward events with will and conquered, but it ate into our provisions reserve. Every detail of food supplies, clothing and depots made on interior ice sheets and on that long stretch of eight hundred miles to the pole and back worked out to perfection.

"The advance party would have returned to the glacier in fine form and with a surplus of food but for the astonishing failure of the man whom we had least expected to fail. Seaman Evans was thought to be the strongest man of the party, and Beardmore glacier is not difficult in fine weather, but on our return we did not get a single completely fine day, and this, with a sick companion, enormously increased our difficulties. We got into frightfully rough ice, and Evans received concussion of the brain. He died a natural death, but left us a shaken party, with the season unduly advanced.

"But all the failures above encountered were as nothing to the surprise that awaited us on the barrier. I maintain that our arrangements for returning were quite adequate, and that no one in the world would have expected the temperature and surface which we encountered at this time of the year. On the summit, in latitude 85 degrees to latitude 86 degrees we have minus 20 to minus 30.

"On the barrier, in latitude 82, ten thousand feet lower, we had minus 30 during the day and minus 47 at night pretty regularly, with continuous head winds during the day marches. These circumstances came on very suddenly and our wreck was certainly due to this.

"I do not think human beings ever came through such months as we have come through, and we should have got through in spite of the weather but for the sickening of our mate and the shortage of fuel in our depots, for which I cannot account, and finally but for the storm which has fallen on us within eleven miles of this depot, at which we hoped to secure final supplies.

"Surely misfortune could scarcely have exceeded this last blow. We arrived within eleven miles of our old One Ton camp, with fuel for one hot meal, food for two days. For four days we have been unable to leave the tent, and a gale has been blowing about us. We are weak. Writing is difficult.

"But for my own sake I do not regret this journey, which has shown us that Englishmen can endure hardship, help one another and meet death with as great fortitude as ever in the past. We took risks. We knew we took them. Things have come out against us and therefore we have no cause for complaint, but how to the will of Providence, determined still to do our best to the last.

"But if we have been willing to give our lives to this enterprise, which is for the honor of our country, I appeal to our countrymen to see that those who depend upon us are properly cared for. Had we lived I should have had a tale to tell of the hardihood, endurance and courage of my companions which would have stirred the hearts of all Englishmen.

"These rough notes and our dead bodies must tell the tale. But surely a great and rich country like ours will see that those who depend upon us are properly provided for.

of $4,000 in the Federal Court.

New York, Feb. 12.—James A. Patten, the Chicago cotton king, appeared in the federal court and pleaded guilty to the six counts of an indictment charging him with restraint of trade in connection with the recent "corner" on cotton. He was fined $4,000, which he paid in court.

DECOY MONEY FOUND ON THE LEGISLATORS

Five West Virginians Held On Bribery Charge.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 12.—Five members of the house of delegates and one senator, charged with having received large bribes to vote for Colonel W. S. Edwards for United States senator, were arrested by G. B. Bentley, a detective who acted as an agent of Colonel Edwards.

Bentley paid $20,000 to the five men and then took them one at a time into another room and turned them over to Prosecuting Attorney T. C. Townsend, Sheriff Bonner Hill and a number of deputies.

A dictagraph played an important part in the plot that caused the arrest of the five republican legislators. The men are Senator R. A. Smith of Roane county and Delegates Rhodes of Mingo county, Duff of Jackson county, Asbury of Putnam county and Hill of Mason county.

Delegate Rhodes placed the name of Isaac T. Mann for United States senator before the joint assembly, but voted for Colonel Edwards. In doing so he stated that he believed Colonel Mann's chances were no longer good and therefore voted for Colonel Edwards.

It has been common gossip that Rhodes was holding a bunch of votes and expecting a large price for them. When arrested Rhodes, who engineered the deal, had $10,000 in marked bills in his pockets. Smith, Duff, Asbury and Hill each had $1,000 in decoy money.

Each of the accused legislators was held under $5,000 bail.

LONG WALK AHEAD OF THEM

Party of Suffragettes Will Hike From New York to Washington.

New York, Feb. 12.—At 9 o'clock this morning the suffragette hikers struck the trail for Washington. Dozens of friends accompanied them to Newark, where the yellow wagon in which General Jones and Colonel Ida Craft campaigned through Ohio, was waiting, with a fresh coat of paint and a new pair of front wheels, to head the march.

Miss Elizabeth Freeman will drive Suffragette—the horse that draws the yellow wagon is always called Suffragette regardless of sex or convictions—and distribute literature along the way. The party expects to arrive at the national capital March 1.

The people along the line of march are preparing to greet the pilgrims as joyously as they would the circus. Bells will be rung and delegations will be sent out bearing food and invitations. With its three new recruits, Flora Camilla Allyn of Mystic, Conn., Minerva Crowell of Smith college and Celia Gaffney, the army numbers seventeen. The others are: General Rosalie Jones, Colonel Ida Craft, Surgeon General Lavina Dock, Official Scout Alice Schultz, Corporal Manha Klatichken, Bugler George Wend, and Priates Mrs. Marie Baird, Mrs. J. E. Balld, Mrs. Mary Morgan, Mrs. George Wend and Misses Constance Lupp, Elizabeth Freeman, Margaret Doetsch and Phoebe Hawn.

Illinois Democratic Indorsement.
Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12.—Colonel James Hamilton Lewis was indorsed for the long term as United States senator by the joint caucus of Democrats of both houses. Charles Boeschstein was indorsed for the short term.

Congress has passed a bill allowing a pension of $20 a month for surviving soldiers of the Indian wars.

Were You Ever Gold Bricked?

If you are thinking of buying a suit of clothes and some one offers you a cheap, out-of-date suit for a little less than I charge for an up-to-date, all-wool suit, made to your individual measure, out of 1913 goods, 1913 model, a suit guaranteed in style, fit, workmanship and wearing qualities, and you buy of him, then and there you are gold-bricked.

I have nearly one thousand patterns of the latest all wool fabrics, from the world's best looms, awaiting your inspection and from which you can select your new spring suit. The prices for the whole suit made to your measure range from $17.00 to $50.00 and some even higher, but any suit we make you, no matter what the price, will fit you, will wear you, will look good on you and will please you, even if it didn't cost you as much as $20.00.

Come in as soon as possible, Easter is not far off, March 23 this year, and judging from the way my canary bird is singing and Ad. Linville's shining up, spring is nearly here.

DIAZ HOLDS HIS OWN IN CITADEL

Madero Unable to Dislodge
Revolutionist.

EFFORTS COST MANY LIVES

Mexican President's Answer to the Ultimatum of the Man Who Has Set Himself Up as Provisional President of the Troubled Republic Was to Give Battle to Intrenched Pretender, Who Resisted Successfully.

Mexico City, Feb. 12.—The forces of President Madero were repulsed with heavy loss in attempts to capture the citadel and arsenal in which General Felix Diaz had fortified himself. Four times General Victoriano Huerta and General Angeles, the Madero commanders, assaulted the citadel and four times they were driven back by the deadly fire of the Diaz machine guns.

There was terrific fighting for hours west and southwest of the Alameda, the great city park, the battle centering around the arsenal. The American consulate was in line of the artillery fire and half a dozen shells penetrated the walls of the building. Shrapnel fire slaughtered seventy Madero rurales who were in position in front of the consulate.

While neither side gained a decisive victory, the advantage rests with General Diaz, who attacked on all sides, succeeded in holding his position and in hurling back a greatly superior force.

It is impossible to give an accurate estimate of the dead and wounded, but the reports are that the federals lost twice as many as Diaz in killed and injured. One estimate has it that 150 of Diaz's troops were killed and about 300 injured and that Madero's loss was at least 300 killed and 500 injured.

General Diaz owes his success to the precision of artillery and machine gun fire directed by General Mondragon. Mondragon's guns, which commanded the main approaches to the citadel, mowed down the columns of General Huerta and General Angeles and silenced the federal cannon under Colonel Rubio Navette, one of the ablest artillerymen of the Mexican army. Numerous buildings to the west and southwest of the Alameda and in the vicinity of the arsenal were injured or completely wrecked by the constant artillery fire.

The city is in an absolute state of terror. Law and order do not exist. At each other's throats, neither Diaz nor Madero can adequately protect the American or other foreign residents. The American colony was swept by the battle and hundreds of lives were endangered.

The American ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson, and the representatives of other foreign nations have counseled their countrymen to keep off the streets and have organized volunteer guards for the protection of the embassies. Every embassy and the foreign colonies are guarded by forces of heavily armed volunteers.

The fighting was President Madero's answer to the ultimatum that Senor Cologna, the Spanish ambassador, delivered from the provisional president, General Diaz.

Before the battle began the houses in most of this part of the city were crowded with citizens and foreign residents who were intensely interested in the coming duel. When the fighting began these non-combatants who were nearest the lines of fire were exposed to grave peril, and as the firing increased many were injured. Among these was Lloyd Osborne, the author, who received a serious flesh wound in the side.

Several other Americans were hit by bits of spent bullets. The office of Consul General Arnold V. Shanklin was struck by several shells and Mr. Shanklin, with the staff of the consulate, took refuge in the American embassy.

South Africa Buys Marion Cars at Show

One of the most interesting sales of the New York show was made by M. D. MacNab, vice-president of the Marion Motor Car Co. of Indianapolis, in taking orders for 21 Marion touring cars to be shipped immediately to Johannesburg, South Africa.

The Marion Company recently made a connection in that far away part of the world and a month ago six Marion 37-A touring cars were crated and shipped. As a result of the show season the New York export representatives of the South African people cabled and received answer to forward 6 more if the factory could deliver them that same week.

Shipping schedules at the factory had been so heavy that Dr. MacNab had to telegraph about this, and when the answer was returned saying that they could arrange to crate six touring cars the order was increased to 12 cars, six to be sent the next week. Two days later nine more were ordered.

The Johannesburg representatives recently spent several weeks inspecting American-made cars and upon reaching Indianapolis took four hours in going through the Marion plant, the largest in that city, and then signed a contract. 288t1

A Parallel Case.

A municipal water system, we would be compelled to presume, is owned by the taxpayers, and the members of the city council are their servants, elected to conduct the business affairs of the city. The city sewer system, under the same premise, then, is also property of the taxpayers.

When the sewer was built, it was paid for by the city. The city got its money from the property owners, who paid taxes according to a rate fixed by the city. Not everybody used the sewer. There are still many people in Rushville who have no use for the sewer, but nevertheless they contributed their part to pay for it when it was built.

The city proposes eventually to install water meters to prevent useless waste of water, and in this way, the city council believes, expenses can be cut down. A hundred meters have been ordered and the superintendent of the plant has been instructed to put them in as fast as possible.

Although the council is said not to have determined the exact price which will be charged the consumer for the meter, it is a settled fact that the consumer will have to pay for the meters. The price of each meter will be in the neighborhood of $12.60.

Members of the water and light committee of the city council argue that the taxpayers in the city as a whole should not be compelled to pay for the water meters in taxes, because they do not all use city water. We challenge the city council to prove that more people use the city sewer system than use city water.

The cases are similar. The taxpayers paid for the sewer according to the amount of property for which they are assessed. Then why should not the taxpayers, in the same way, pay for the water meters, since the council has decided they will be a necessary adjunct if any resident of Rushville uses city water.

The plan of the city to charge the consumer for the meter the same sum it has to pay will work no hardship on the man who is comfortably fixed financially. Possibly he would as soon pay the cost when the meter is installed as to pay his share in taxes. His share would be greater than the poor man's.

It is the workaday man who does not have $12.60 lying around all the time that will feel the effect of the council's action. And the majority of working men are dependent on city water for their supply. A well is never dug when a new house is built, because the city water is purer and more convenient. A large majority of the houses in Rushville have nothing but city water.

Also Has Affinities.

Every city of any size has its affinities, and Rushville has a few. Affinities appear to have been a more popular fad ages ago than they are now. In the days of the old patriarchs they were so fashionable among the upper crust that they were "perfectly respectable." These latter days heiresses who spoon so gushingly over papa's coachman or chauffeur would not have created any sensation at all in the days of Abraham and Isaac, and the idea of a married man being obliged to get a divorce before he could gather a few more maidens unto his bosom was unheard of. When old Abraham made a match on Hager, nothing was thought of it.

It is a good thing in the present day that nobody can go it as Solomon, for instance, did. It shows that we are gradually going more to brains and culture and less to animalism.

The affinity habit still lingers with us, but it is on the wane. Our society is still brutal. We are not yet out of the jungle. Profligates like Solomon and a few modern men will not always pester us, for there is evidence that the world is becoming better.

The new society that we are slowly but surely building may make us more and more human—perhaps, in time, almost divine.

The trusts will probably move out of New Jersey after the old incorporation law is repealed, but all the property they have there can be taken out in a suit case.

Some congressmen having indiscreetly referred to the 17th axiom of Euclid's geometry, an unfavorable impression was produced in Wall street, and the entire list dropped from one to three points.

FAVORS COUNTY HOSPITALS

Senate Committee Reports on Bill Permitting Their Establishment.

Senator Will R. Wood's bill, 130, authorizing Indiana counties to establish hospitals, reported favorably by the Senate committee on county and township business. All sorts of hospitals exists in Indiana, most of them private, and in cities of the larger class, there may be a city hospital. But Senator Wood's bill opens the way for every county to take care of its sick independently, if it so desires. The bill authorizes a tax levy of 2 miles on the taxable property of a county to raise funds to erect a hospital. It is the new medical view that each county should take care of its tubercular patients and the bill grants the requisite authority.

Mrs. W. W. Grose delightfully entertained a number of the young people of Clarksburg last evening. The occasion was in honor of her son, Glen's 15th birthday, sixteen couples being present to help him celebrate. A number of wholesome games contributed to the evening's pleasure, at the conclusion of which, a delicious two course luncheon was served.

Immediately after the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Aldridge in Perkins street last evening, when their daughter, Miss Ruth Aldridge, and Verl Bebout, son of Sheriff and Mrs. Clara Bebout, were married by Dr. V. W. Tevis, the bride and bridegroom left for their new home in Indianapolis where they will reside while Mr. Bebout is finishing his studies in Indiana Dental college. The wedding was simple and was attended by only relatives and a few close friends. A wedding supper was served.

Amusements

The Princess will show a Kalem drama, "The Daughter's Sacrifice," for the first picture tonight. The other is a Vitagraph comedy, "The Absent-minded Valet." Tomorrow night a Biograph featuring Mary Pickford will shown.

The Palace will show a two-reel feature tonight entitled "The Gypsy Spy." The show tonight is given under the auspices of the Young Mens' Circle of the Main Street Christian church. The picture is a dramatic production and is expected to attract a large crowd.

"The Silver Wedding," Edward Locke's new comedy of German-American life which H. H. Frazee will present at the Shubert Murat Theatre, Indianapolis on Friday and Saturday, February 14-15 and Saturday matinee, is the most wholesome play of recent years.

The play, written by Edward Locke, author of "The Climax" and "The Case of Becky," is like the others, unique and whimsical. Reared in Western Pennsylvania, with Germans for neighbors, he has had an opportunity to study these people, and in the play he has made use of characters incidents with which he is personally familiar. The producer of the play, H. H. Frazee, is known to local theatregoers for the prodigality of his cast and productions.

It was he who gave the stage "Madame Sherry," "Ready Money" and "Fine Feathers," and he has used the same care in staging "The Silver Wedding." Thos. A. Wise, who is without an equal on the American stage as a character comedy star, has the central character of Ludwig Koehler, the harness-maker, and leader of the Lauterbach Military Band. Edna Aug, whose characterization of the slavery in vaudeville has made millions laugh in America and England, has been engaged for the role of the German housemaid. Prominent among the characters in play are the doctor, the barber and the parson, who compose the village string quartette, and the actors playing these parts are trained musicians. The love interest in the play centers in Martha, the young daughter of Ludwig Koehler, and George Eckhardt, the drug clerk, played by Frances Nelson and Robert Ames. The play is a picture of domestic happiness, with just enough pathos to relieve the almost constant laughter.

"Yes, it's the truth!" She turned to him calmly at last, well in hand again. "I couldn't be one of them—couldn't be like those people down below, so I did the best I could up here—I dressed as much like them as I knew how. I—I—I imagined! I dreamed, Mr. Rawn. I've never known a real evening of that sort in all my life—but it's in my blood. I want to go, I want to dine, and drink, and dance—I'm mad about it, I know, but it's the truth! I want what I can't have. I want to be what I'm not. I don't know what's the reason. It's in the air—maybe it's in the day, in the country!"

"Yes, it's in the country," said John Rawn. "We're all going a swift pace, men and women both. I don't blame you. I understand you. Now I know what you want."

"You want just about what I want."

"But Mr. Rawn—"

"It's the same thing—it's power that you want, just as I do. I feel it in the air when I come near you. You feel the same way when you come near me!"

She nodded rapidly, her eyes narrowing. "Yes, it's true!" she said. "That's true."

"You want to have it within your ability to influence men, just as I do, don't you, Miss Delaware? That's what was in your soul when you stood before your mirror when I came in, wasn't it, Miss Delaware? You want to win, to succeed, to triumph, don't you, Miss Delaware—you've got ambition? Wasn't that your dream—wasn't that what you were imagining, as you stood there and looked in your glass?"

"Yes, yes, it's true, I know it!" she admitted panting. "I know it, my God! yes, I can't help it! But what chance have I?"

"All sorts of chances, my dear girl. I don't make mistakes. I told you this is a business proposition. Now, then, tell me, why did you tog out this way?"

"I did because I had to. I told you I couldn't help it. It was in my blood tonight!"

"Any man waiting anywhere, Miss Delaware?"

"On my word, no! I wasn't even going downstairs. But I told you I was mad to be in that crowd, where the rich people are. I wanted to hear the music, I wanted to see them—I wanted to pretend for one night that I was a part of it all!"

"You wanted to win—you coveted power! Is it not true?"

"Yes!" she blazed fiercely. And indeed at that moment the room seemed full of some large influence, moving, throbbing all about them.

"I wanted that," the girl admitted. "All the world does!"

"I suppose you wanted to see some strong man fall on his knees and beg of you?"

"Yes."

"I am sorry, my dear, but I'll not do that. But I understand. So you searched out these glad rags and tried yourself out before the mirror there! Very good! You'll do! Believe me—or ask any man in all this city."

She nodded rapidly. "Yes, you know it, now."

"Now, you're no more mad than I am," said John Rawn. "You're as cool-headed as I am, if I know women at all. We think alike. You're young. I'm young enough. Where'd you get that gown?"

"I had it made—in an alley, in the city back home. It cost as much as I could afford. Thirty dollars!" She flung out the words scornfully.

"It looks three hundred; and I've seen worse below tonight that probably cost three thousand. But it's not yet quite complete—your costume."

"It was the best I had. You ought not to taunt me. I stood here facing myself. I felt disappointed, bitter! Yes, I'll admit that."

"You needn't be," said Rawn calmly. He nodded to her bare and unadorned neck, her hair which lacked brilliancy, her fingers left unjeweled. The girl caught his meaning without further speech, and it hurt her yet more.

"What could I do? Why did you bring me here, Mr. Rawn? You've made me unhappy. I've seen it, and I can't be a part of it. It doesn't seem I can go back there to work and be just the same any more, after seeing the city here! I tell you, it's got in my blood, all at once."

"No," he said evenly, "not again just the same. We outgrow ourselves, and can't go back. I'm not the same man I once was." He half-unconsciously shifted to get a glimpse of himself in the mirror.

"But now, my business proposition is very simple. It holds good for one evening, Miss Delaware. I was just going to propose that we forget all this unhappiness, and do a little pretending for one night, say for one hour or so."

He fumbled in his waistcoat pocket, and drew out something which suddenly flamed into dancing points and rays in the light that fell upon it. She stood motionless while he passed about her neck a tiny thread, delicate as if spun of moonlight. She held out her hand, and he slipped over it a gleaming ring of gems. She bent her head, and he placed a sparkling ornament in her hair. She had seen these jewels before. She turned to the glass now, her bosom heaving as she saw them gleam at her own neck, her own hands, in her own hair. She held out her hands to look at them now, and the gems flashed back challenge to her eyes, sparkling yet more brilliantly.

"It was nothing," said John Rawn tersely. "That's all that lacked. You're good as the best now. I've seen no woman in this city that is your equal in beauty. You were born for this life. Now do you understand what I mean? I say, you can carry it off!"

She turned to him, another woman, changing on the instant, something in her eyes he had never seen before. But in his own eyes there was at the time nothing save the original calm and purposefulness.

"As I was saying, then, since we can both carry it off, why not do so for an hour or so? I've read somewhere of masquerades. Why not try it?"

She turned to him, flushed, radiant, but slightly frowning, puzzled, studying him. Rawn felt the quivering down in his nature which he grappled at once and was able to suppress. His voice was cool and low as it was before.

"It's a big crowd below, and we'll be lost in it. I've learned already that you can be discreet. We'll drop down in there, where no one knows us. We'll try ourselves out, and see whether we'll do, here where the test is hardest. You're ambitious? So am I. This is the heart of the world—the place of gratified ambitions. What do you say, Miss Delaware? I've been looking around down there, and as nearly as I can see, I'm the only man in this avenue worth a million dollars who at this precise moment of the day isn't talking to some good-looking woman!"

"You flatter me!" commented the girl. He did not endeavor any analysis.

"Not in the least! I simply talk sense and business to you. I covet what you covet, love what you love, want what you want. Things which are equal to the same thing ought to be equal to each other—for just a little while, Miss Delaware. Isn't it true? If it is only play, why, let's play at it."

"I forgot to tell you," he added, "that my son-in-law, Mr. Halsey, has gone back to Chicago. He was summoned by wire. No one else knows us both. There wouldn't be one chance in many of our being seen by anyone here who knew either of us, and if so, what harm? We'll go and dine as well as the best of them, in the main room. What do you say, Miss Delaware?"

She stood facing him now, seeming years older than she had a few moments before. A very skilled observer might possibly have suspected a certain new quality in the calmness of her eye. Beautiful she certainly was; alluring, irresistible in the ancient appeal of woman, she certainly ought to have been, and would have been to any but this particular man who now stood facing her, half smiling; a man of middle age, gray about the temples, of heavy-browed eyes, strongly lined face, of strong and bony frame; not an ill-looking or unmanly man one might have said, though years older than this young woman who stood now threading between her fingers the filmy moonshine chain which suspended the points of flame that rose and fell upon her bosom.

At last she said, hesitating, and holding up the flaming pendant, "I'm not to keep them?"

"No, Marguerite!" he smiled. "This particular Papa Faust retains a string on those jewels. They have been seen elsewhere, my dear girl. No, one night's use of them is all this business proposition carries, my dear."

He began to be just a shade more familiar; but she looked at him, still curiously helpless, because she found him strong where most men are weak and defenseless. He caught some sort of challenge in her attitude and in spite of himself trod a half step forward. . . . She evaded him. He heard her laughter rippling in the hall, and followed. . . . Soon they were in the crowded lift, packed in against shirt front and aigrette, silks and jewels, arms and bosoms bared for the evening's fray.

It may be true that no gentleman is grown in less than three generations, but it is not the case that it requires three generations to produce an aristocrat; and here was simple and perfect proof of that assertion. Head waiters make no mistakes! The head waiter of the main hall unhesitatingly took John Rawn and his companion to as good a table as there was in the room. He knew the air of distinction when he saw it!

Heads, in plenty, of men and other women, turned as they passed through in that careless throng of the world-wise and blase. They walked by quietly, simply, took their places with no hesitation. John Rawn had bethought him earlier as to the dinner order. He gave his directions now quietly, without hesitation.

The two ate and drank discreetly, comported themselves, in fact, easily as any of these scores of others. They did not lean toward each other and obviously talk secrets, they did not laugh uneasily and stare about. Among the many well-bred women in that room—where at least a few such were present—none showed an easier accustomedness than Virginia Delaware. Her eagerness, her feverish anxiety, all now were gone. She was perfectly in hand. It was her pleasure now only to prove her fitness for such a scene, to comport herself as though she had known no other surroundings than these in all her life. Once more the miracle of possibility in the young American woman was shown.

Rawn, discreet as his companion, looked on with approval. "You're it!" he once whispered across the table, as he bent above the menu. "You are the part!" Suddenly there came to him out of this occasion an additional surge of self-confidence. Yes, he said to himself, he, too, could travel this gait. He could step easily into this

SHH! LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN FADED GRAY HAIR—USE SAGE TEA.

Sage Mixed With Sulphur Restores Natural Color and Lustre to Hair.

Why suffer the handicap of looking old. Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance.

Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use; but listen,

Life, the summit of life in America—as he thought—as though born to it. He could spend money with the best. He could obtain for himself as beautiful a woman to wear his jewels as any man here in all this great city. He could as widely advertise his power, his wealth, as any of these. Did he not see envious eyes bent upon his companion and upon himself? It was done! He had won! He had succeeded!

After all, it had been easy, as he had found so many things easy in the test. As to the young woman with him, John Rawn's cold heart went out in admiration. "By Jove!" he said, "she's a lady, that's what she is. She'd be—" Yet it is to be noted that his admiration for this young woman was primarily based not upon the usual impulses of men so situated, but upon a vast self-respect, for that he had placed her here and so proved his own judgment to be good. Some souls are slow to any love but that of self, the approbation of self being the breath of life to them. Even the beauty of Virginia Delaware—and she was beautiful—was swallowed up in John Rawn's love and admiration for himself.

There was, thus far, no suggestion of impropriety between them, now or later. They dined long, deliberately and well. Miss Delaware drank no wine; Rawn himself only abstemiously. The keenest delight of the evening felt by either came not of food or drink. The intoxication of the city's night life fell upon them, entered their souls. Distant and low-voiced musical instruments set the air athrob with sensuous melody. Flowers bloomed, jewels blazed, soft voices rose, wine added its stimulus here and there. But beyond this luxury, this sensuousness, beyond the novelty of it, beyond the vague impulses of a common, humanity which runs through all the world, they felt the last and subtle delight which comes with an admitted assuredness of self—the consciousness of power and ability to prevail, the certainty of knowing all the path, all the full orbit of the great.

As they sat thus calmly, apparently, as most might have said, old habits of scenes like this, apparently persons of wealth and distinction, Rawn felt once more bent upon him the look of a passer-by. There approached the table where they sat the couple he had seen earlier that evening, a stately and beautiful young woman, whose features now were a trifle more animated, whose eyes were brighter; and with her the same dyspeptic director, sallow, with pointed dark beard. His face flushed still more as he saw John Rawn and his companion. He turned an admiring gaze upon the latter, whom of course he did not recognize. Rawn caught the gaze. It was the keenest delight of his evening that he could smile back, showing his own teeth also.

"By Jove!" muttered the ex-director to himself.

"I beg pardon!" haughtily commented his own fair companion, who had caught his gaze aside. "You know that person? Who is she?"

"I don't know, my dear—I'm just trying to think. Her face—it looks like the goddess on some stock certificate I've seen—"

"Indeed?"

"Yes, goddess with a handful of lightning bolts."

"Indeed?"

"Yes. We might call her the 'Lady of the Lightnings' tonight. She surely does shine like the bright and morning star, the way she's illuminated—eh, what?"

avoid preparations put up by druggists as they usually use too much sulphur, which makes the hair sticky. Get "Wyeth's" which can always be depended upon to darken beautifully and is the best thing known to remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

By using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair. It does it so naturally and evenly—you moisten a sponge or soft brush, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time which requires but a few moments. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two its natural color is restored and it becomes glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger

HARGROVE & MULLIN,

"Well, hang it all! She's a looker, too!"

"Indeed?"

"Yes, indeed! And they both look like ready money." The ex-director gave a little laugh.

"You don't know them?" asked his companion, more placated as they reached the corridor, where Virginia Delaware was at last out of sight.

"No, I don't know her—never saw her before, unless, as I said, in an engraving. Don't worry—I haven't got any of the engravings—now."

"Who is he?"

"Fellow by name of Rawn, from Chicago."

"Oh!"

Who Are "Just Ready to Drop."

When you are "just ready to drop," when you feel so weak that you can hardly drag yourself about—and because you have not slept well, you get up as tired-out next morning as when you went to bed, you need help.

Miss Lea Dumas writes from Malone, N. Y., saying: "I was in a badly run-down condition for several weeks but two bottles of Vinol put me on my feet again and made me strong and well. Vinol has done me more good than all the other medicine I ever took."

If the careworn, run-down women, the pale, sickly children and feeble old folks around here would follow Miss Dumas' example, they, too, would soon be able to say that Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron remedy, had built them up and made them strong.

It is a wonderful, strength creator and body-builder, and we sell it under a guarantee of satisfaction. You get your money back if Vinol does not help you. F. B. Johnson and Company, druggists, Rushville, Ind.

Third Daughter of Rear Admiral Follows Example of Others.

Miss Frances Potts, youngest daughter of Rear Admiral Robert Potts, has followed the example of her two elder sisters despite her father's pleading and forsaken society for the quiet of the cloister.

On Feb. 11 she made her final vows as a member of the Carmelite order in Baltimore, which means that her father will never see her face again in life. The nuns are pledged to silence and perpetual prayers.

The Potts sisters were very popular in Washington society, and all three are beautiful.

PROGRAM FIXED IN THE SENATE

Hoosier Legislators Decide On Definite Action.

A CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

Caucus Determines to Give the People of Indiana a Chance to Revise Their Organic Law if They Shall Decide That This Is Their Desire—Squabble Over Public Utilities Bill Settled on a "Glory Enough For All" Basis.

Indianapolis, Feb. 12.—The summary of important action taken in the Democratic senate caucus was to provide for the calling of a constitutional convention by the governor in 1915 under a new Stotsenburg bill; to retire the Shively public utilities bill and push the Spencer bill under the name of the Shively-Spencer bill, and to thrash out amendments to the measure in senate caucus and have the bill reported out favorably in the upper house not later than tomorrow.

The compromise on the christening of the public utilities bill, and the caucus christening, followed a conference held in Governor Ralston's office, at which both the godfathers of the bill were present.

Senate bill No. 20, known as the Shively bill, is to be referred back to the committee on cities and towns, and the Shively-Spencer bill, known heretofore as house bill 361, is to be the one bill from this time on in the senate. Thus the names of Senator Shively and Representative Spencer will be assured of places in the "acts."

Report Due Tomorrow.

Besides hyphenating the public utilities bill, the senate caucus decided that the Shively-Spencer public service commission or public utilities commission bill should be reported out of committee in the senate not later than tomorrow.

A public hearing is to be given in the senate this afternoon following adjournment on the Shively-Spencer public utilities bill. Senate bill 20 will be considered further.

It is the present purpose to amend the public utilities bill in senate caucus and to put the measure before the senate in shape to be passed without further changes. The bill is to be ordered printed with amendments when it is reported by the senate committee on cities and towns.

Under the provision of a new Stotsenburg bill, introduced today in the senate, the question of a constitutional convention for the making over of the Indiana constitution of 1852 will be submitted to the people at the general election of 1914.

120 Days For Convention.

Thereafter, if the people vote in favor of a constitutional convention, the governor, under the bill, will issue a proclamation calling for the holding of a constitutional convention to begin the first Monday in November, 1915, and to continue 120 days.

In the constitutional convention, under the Stotsenburg bill, there would sit 150 delegates, and the delegates would be elected from the legislative districts as they now are made up for state representatives and state senators.

By way of clearing the decks the caucus decided that the joint resolution providing for the withdrawal of the "lawyers' qualification amendment" to the state constitution would be passed. The amendment has failed of adoption, though submitted several times to the voters, and it is now the purpose to withdraw it by resolution.

The Registration Bill.

The caucus decided to continue for further action the bills providing for the amendment or alteration of the registration law. The VanAnken bill has not yet been printed with its amendments, and the caucus will take up the subject of registration law revision later after the bill has been printed in its new form.

Among the measures passed yesterday in the senate was the bill providing heavy penalty for selling a deadly weapon to an intoxicated person; a bill providing a sentence of from two to fourteen years for burglary instead of from ten to twenty years, and a bill providing for the establishment of county tuberculosis hospitals.

The house passed a bill permitting increases in rates for fraternal insurance and a "pure fabric" bill.

The pope's sister, Rosa Sarto, seventy-seven years old, is dead in Rome of paralysis.

PRESIDENT OPPOSES ARMED INTERVENTION

Mexican Situation Subject of Grave Conference.

Washington, Feb. 12.—The secretary of the navy has ordered two more battleships to Mexico as a result of a prolonged White House conference, and the secretary of war has ordered two transports at Newport News to be put in readiness for troops. All other preparations have been made by the administration for an armed movement for the protection of American life in Mexico on the information that anarchy prevails. The president in a formal statement again declared against intervention, and it is said will use every effort to avoid sending troops across the border.

The army at this moment is in instant readiness to strike a telling blow if called upon to do so. Practically the entire Atlantic fleet is now at Guantanamo bay, Cuba, engaged in the annual winter practice. The entire force could be massed on the gulf coast of Mexico and a force of at least 10,000 men, including marines and bluejackets, could be landed at Vera Cruz and Tampico.

The army has been held in readiness for expeditionary service almost ever since the beginning of the troubles in Mexico. About 5,000 men are now on the Mexican border, including infantry, cavalry and artillery. Troops at all posts in other parts of the country have long been held in readiness to move on an instant's notice.

New York, Feb. 12.—Andrew Carnegie has given to the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching $1,250,000, the income from which is to be used for the study of education and educational institutions. The gift is distinct from the $15,000,000 which Mr. Carnegie put aside for pensions for college presidents.

Wife Murderer Given Life Sentence.

Lagrange, Ind., Feb. 12.—Entering a plea of guilty to the charge of murder, Lee Edward Hart was sentenced to life imprisonment in Michigan City for the murder of his wife in December. Hart also killed his mother-in-law, but his plea was on the one indictment.

RUSHVILLE TEAM AN EASY WINNER

Locals Too Fast For Connersville Five And Game Ends 40 to 8.

VISITORS WERE OUTCLASSED

Displaying very little team work and an inability to hit the basket, the Connersville Y. M. C. C. basketball team proved easy for the local Independents last night and Rushville walked away with the game by the score of 40 to 8. The Rushville team was in good form and the team work was the best seen on the local floor this year. Connersville showed a lack of practice and their basket throwing was very poor. In the last half the visitors made but one field goal. The locals led at the end of the first period 25 to 6. The lineup and summary:

| Connersville   | Rushville |
|--|-----------|
| Austed   | Position  |

| Preston  | Center    |

WON BY SCORE OF 21 TO 16.

The local high school basketball team defeated the Fairview high school team yesterday afternoon 21 to 16 at the Graham school "gym." The game was very fast and the Rushville team was given a hard battle. The first half ended 9 to 6 in favor of the locals. In the last half Fairview took a brace and came near putting across a victory. The Fairview team was accompanied by about forty rooters. The Rushville team lined up with all the regulars in the game. The team plays Carthage Friday night and Richmond here Saturday night.

WILL PLAY LIBERTY.

The New Salem and Liberty basketball teams will play at New Salem next Friday night. New Salem beat Liberty on the Liberty floor, 21 to 19, in an overtime game a few weeks ago, and a hot contest is anticipated.

$5000! DAMAGE CASE IS RECEIVED HERE

Suit of Mrs. Sarah E. Barrett Against T. H. I. & E. Traction Co. to be Tried in Local Court.

SENT FROM HANCOCK COUNTY

The five thousand-dollar damage suit of Sarah E. Barrett against the Terre Haute, Indianapolis and Eastern traction company has been sent to this county on change of venue from Hancock county. Mrs. Barrett is a resident of Greenfield and in the complaint alleges that while driving in an automobile in that city the defendant company through carelessness in running one of its cars, hit the automobile and injured the plaintiff for life. Mrs. Barrett states that as a result of her injuries she is now an invalid suffering from paralysis. The complaint charges the traction company with operating the car at a rate of thirty-five miles an hour. The case was filed in the Hancock circuit court at the September term and is the first big case received here since the establishment of a separate court.

CLASS OF 1908 TO MEET NEXT MONDAY

Will Decide on Gift to School After Being on "Outs" For Five Years.

MONEY FROM PLAY IN BANK

The class of 1908 of the local high school will hold a meeting Monday afternoon at four o'clock in the high school building for the purpose of determining definitely what the class will do with the money earned from the class play. The class of 1908 "put on" "The College Widow" and cleared something like $140. A disagreement arose over a suitable present to give the school and as a result the money has been in bank for almost five years. Of the class of 1908 there is probably fifteen members left in Rushville and a large attendance is desired at the meeting. The play produced by this class was the last ever put on by the high school and when given it was for the purpose of giving something useful to the high school. Just what the class will present the school is not known.

JURY FINDS FOR THE DEFENDANT

Bertha Ball of Spiceland Loses $10,000 Damage Suit Against T. H. I. & E. Traction Co.

JURORS HAD CASE FOR AN HOUR

In the suit of Bertha Ball against the Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern, for $10,000, the jury found for the defendant in the Henry circuit court at Newcastle.

This suit grew out of an alleged personal injury at Spiceland. The plaintiff claimed that the car was started while she was on the top step, and that she was thrown violently against the iron railing of the car. Three or four witnesses testified that the plaintiff was well inside the car before the conductor gave the signal to start.

The jury had the case for about an hour, taking five ballots, on the fifth finding for the defendant.

DEDICATION TO BE HELD EASTER

Members of Knightstown Presbyterian Congregation Plan to Enter New Church Then.

$25,000 IS NOW BEING RAISED

Contractors Say They Will Be Ready

To Turn Edifice Over To Decorators March First.

The attempt of the members of the Knightstown Presbyterian church to raise $25,000 by Easter Sunday to pay for the new church edifice which is being constructed is reported to be meeting with great success. The committee will not report until the day of dedication.

The new edifice has reached the stage of building in which everyone can form an adequate conception of what it is to be. Those who have visited the building for inspection have expressed their admiration of it. The auditorium is ready for the laying of the floor and the placing of the art glass windows.

The church when completed and dedicated and ready for work will offer the solution for some of the problems now worrying Knightstown parents concerning their boys and girls. The gymnasium is to be an especial attraction which will be used not as a side issue, but as a part of the organization of the church as a unit.

The contractors have stated that they will be ready to turn over the building to the decorator the first of March. The new pulpit furniture and pews, made of dark golden oak, have arrived and are stored.

The building committee is very anxious to get the work of subscriptions finished and it is hoped that every citizen will respond heartily in a gift to this institution for which the entire community can be justly proud.

It is the expectation of the officials of the church to dedicate the edifice with all the funds in sight, according to the five-year plan of paying, which is being used by the contributors.

LUTHER HAMILTON IS UNLUCKY MAN

Purloiners Take Sew and Eight Pigs in Addition to Those They Butchered.

ESTIMATES HIS LOSS AT $150

Luther Hamilton of Clarksburg vicinity, is undoubtedly one of the most unlucky men in this county, for aside from the usual perplexities of life that he is compelled to constantly wrestle with, he is daily the victim of thieves, says the Greensburg News.

From mules to hogs the purloiners take, and it would hardly be improbable if they stole his whole farm some day. Yesterday it was announced that thieves Sunday butchered four head of fat hogs on his place, left the heads on the farm and decamped with the pork, and after this depredation it was discovered that they had also made off with a valuable sow and eight pigs. Altogether Mr. Hamilton figures that he has lost nearly $150 in the last week as a result of these purloiners' visits, and he is justly indignant at the condition of affairs.
